Proper Proceeding.

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 37.—The Indiana Supreme Court to-day affirmed the Roby case. This was the case in which the Antorney General, in a suit hagainst James O'Leary and others, sought to secure an injunction against the various gambling-houses and race-track poolrooms of Rob., Ind. The court holds that the gamblers, who came in trainleads from Chicago, were not shown to have annoyed any one, and property rights were not interfered with, for the gambling-house of O Leary was levated on the prairie. The court holds that the Roby gamblers can be reached only by criminal process, not by injunction. Proper Proceeding.
